Brian Fuller Hired to Lead Digital Services at Street Level Studio

August 5, 2015, Highwood, IL – Chicago-area marketing and design agency Street Level Studio (SLS) has tapped Brian Fuller as its first digital creative director. Fuller’s new position comes as part of a series of changes to the North Shore establishment, including the January 2015 ownership transition to Tanya Fretheim and an expansion of its digital and video-driven services under her leadership.

Brian Fuller joins the SLS team from CDW, a leading technology solutions provider, where he served in several creative, multimedia capacities at both a design and managerial level. While digital services have long been a part of Street Level Studio’s work, this new, dedicated digital position shows its commitment to meeting client needs.

“It’s incredibly exciting to have Brian become part of the SLS team,” says Fretheim, the new owner and president. “His digital expertise and passion for using technology to elevate a story will be indispensable as we continue to grow as a business and expand our creative capabilities.”
