Street Level Studio Joins Interior Design Society as National Sponsor

November 18, 2020, Highwood, IL – Chicago-area marketing and design agency Street Level Studio has joined the Interior Design Society (IDS) as a national ruby sponsor. In alignment with the society’s mission to support the professionalism, influence, and growth of interior design entrepreneurs, the agency will actively participate in events and outreach initiatives for IDS, one of the country’s largest independent organizations serving the residential interior design industry.

A valued resource for one-of-a-kind personalized wallcoverings, Street Level Studio creates its proprietary Beyond the Surface™ custom wallpapers and murals for a wide range of residential and commercial environments. The agency’s team of surface designers uses the latest digital techniques to turn original design visions into bespoke wall décor that boasts remarkable image quality and consistency. Working digitally also allows the designers to venture beyond repeat patterns, work outside traditional wallpaper limitations, and artistically shift graphic elements to accommodate unique architectural features or fixtures.

“We are delighted to be part of the Interior Design Society,” says Tanya Fretheim, Street Level Studio’s president and owner. “We can’t think of a better forum for sharing not only our enthusiasm for using wallcoverings to transform environments but also our expertise for taking wallpaper in exciting, accessible, and decidedly original directions.”
